34 min	E- 13:25-14:15 T- 11:20 I- 10:27 R- 10:03 (2:30, 1:15)		Strides- are 15 to 35 second sprints at your mile race pace, or roughly 85 to 95% effort. Begin your stride by easing into a fast pace over the first 5 seconds. It is important to ease into the pace, and not explode out of the gait to prevent injury. After 5 seconds, you should have reached full speed. Begin to focus on staying relaxed and letting your body do the work. Keep a relaxed face, make sure your arms aren't flailing, and work on landing on your midfoot (closer to your toes), not your heel. Continue to stay relaxed at your top end speed and gradually, over the last few seconds slow yourself to a stop.
33 min	E- 13:05-13:49 T- 11:01 I- 10:10 R- 9:46 (2:26, 1:13)		Your easy pace can vary depending on multiple things. These paces are your easy range paces, however, sometimes you may be a bit faster or a bit slower. BUT you should never be WAY faster or anywhere close to your threshold pace. I like to go more off of feel for my easy runs. A tip to keep your easy run truly easy is to ask yourself "Can I have a full conversation at this pace?"
32 min	E- 12:45-13:27 T- 10:43 I- 9:54 R- 9:30 (2:22, 1:11)		Whenever you see the word warm up or cool down, it should be easy pace.
